Mosholu Boy, Known as Paddy to His Friends, Is Pride of the Lot.

"Why will not people be honest! Honest even with themselves, I mean. Why will they persist in doing things which they must know are wrong, and then seek to justify their actions

"No one in this world could convince me that all of the fanciers who are preaching 'painless cropping' really believe that it is painless. To be sure, the operation is painless, because sure, the operation is painless, because the dogs are cherized; so is the operation for appendicitis painless.

"It is the awakening and the weeks
while the care are healing that cause
our dear little friends untold suffering.
If psople want to have their dogs' ears mutilated, let them do it, but why not say: 'Of course it is agony to the dog, but he has such a forgiving nature that he will love me anyway, and there is money in it.'

So spoke Mrs. M. C. McGlone, of Boston terrier fame, as she stood in her heautiful kennels, surrounded by her favorites.

"It is absurd to say that one cannot sell one's dogs unless they have their ears cut to sharp points. I never have my dogs' cars cut, and I find the people who buy my dogs as a rule leave them se they are. If you think that there is a dearth of sages in my kennels, look ever my stock and you will find few puppies left. Oh, how often have I picked out a particularly levely youngster and resolved to keep it for my own. Always some heartless purchaser comes along and charms it away from

"Once upon a time, I listened to the voice of the tempter and allowed three of my peis to have their ears cut. I'll never forget the reprouch in their eyes, and for weeks they meaned and cried out with pan if their ears would come in contact with any object. I had the work done, too, by the best veterinarian in the city, but that makes no difference, i never will be satisfied until there is a law prohibiting it.

"But I do not suppose you came here to listen to a dissertation on the cropping of dogs. So I'll go to the subject that is next nextest to my heart, that he auxiling. It happens that I live within one block of the boundary line, on my poor protogés are obliged to the murales, while the ban has been removed from the dogs in Yonkers."

While Mrs. McGlone was speaking there was a flash of seal brown and white across the lawn, which calminated in a romercault near the fence. This prevente he Paddy trying to get or in a somercault near the sence, proved to be Paddy trying to get a to his muzale. Boston terriers such sensitive, nervous little creations in the sensitive cannot accept with mimity having their faces done upleather atraps. Mrs. McGlone has all of her dogs litted with lighter red kid muzales, which can be used so that they do not rub their te faces, but, even at the best, a cale is the bete noir of the canine idd.

He is by Heilborn's Raffles, and is just as handsome as Paddy, and has the advantage of five pounds.

In the whole kennel there is no marrier dog than Truesella, a ten-year-old marron, who has introduced many a champion into this vale of tears. She is "still going strong," as her owner ays, for her youngest son is only two months old. This youngster is called Morphie, because he has taken such an amount of morphine in his short career. KINKY A SMART DOG

The summer kennels are in the basement, where it is about twenty degrees cooler than it is outside, and this solightful cool retreat has been a blywing to all of the little canines who are fortunate enough to live in the Moshelu Kennels.

Little Jolly and Happy are two delightful youngsters who have been allowed to keep all of the ears with which nature endowed them. Both bave beautiful but ears and they look like big butterflies playing on the lawn. Mrs. McGlone looks at them fondly and then says: "How can any one think that little points are half so attractive as those beautiful big ears. I hope the time is near when the bat ear will be the only kind one sees. As a matter of fact nine puppies out of ten are horn with bat ear, and I believe that nature never makes mistakes."

Adjudged Best of Boston Terriers at Gregorian Show.

The recent meeting of the Boston Terrier Club of New York at the Hotel Gregorian was well attended. At the close of the meeting there was a club match at which Mrs. F. A. Dallen, of Boston, adjudicated.

Charles Constantien showed a splendid puppy called Kinky, which won in the junior class, defeating William Kubeck's Crystal Lady Highball and Mrs. A. S. Whitesail's Daisy Delma. Later Kinky was shown in the open class, where he also won, and finally was adjudged the best dog in the show. Here he had to compete with My Bessie, a buxom little matron from the kennels of Peter Yost.

tion is Billesley Bertie, a beautiful Scotch collie, which for the last two weeks has been rusticating in quarantine in Athenia, N. J.

Billesley Bertie is a sen of Champion Parbold Picador. His dam is Billesley Bess, a wonderful matron and the dam of some of the best degs in America, including many champion.

The Parbold Picador and Billesley strain has produced some of England's most famous Scotch collies, and Picador is himself conceded to be the greatest sire of the age. He was bred by H. E. Packwood, ewner of the Billesley Kennels, in England.

Billesley Bertie was shown fearlessly in England, and has proved to be a wonderful show deg. At the Ladies' Kennel Association, London, he took innumerable blues, as well as the special for the best collie dog in the show. At Newport he won eight blue ribbions, defeating some of England's best dogs, including a number of championsing winners.

Bertie has proved to be a good sire, and although he is young he has several nors and daughters which have appeared on the bench. Billesley Bertie will be campaigned at the autumn shows, and collie fanciers are eagerly swaiting his appearance.
